

OLLIE JAMES SAYS GOVERNOR CAN'T VETO AMENDMENT

Washington is viewing Kentucky Situation With Surprise and Curiosity.

Assembly Decides Constitutional Amendment.

IS ON HIS WAY TO THIS CITY.

Louisville, Ky., Feb. 22.—Congressman Ollie M. James, who arrived in Louisville last night from Washington, on route to his home at Marion, declared in an interview that the ratification of the income tax amendment to the federal constitution, which bill has passed both houses of the Kentucky general assembly, is a matter in which Governor Willson has no prerogative and that the governor's reported intention of vetoing it is of no consequence.

"The governor absolutely has no power in the case," said Congressman James. "The law is explicit in its provisions that amendments to the federal constitution are adopted by passage of the amendment by congress and the ratification of that section by the legislature or three-fourths of the states of the union. The action of the state legislature is certified to by the secretary of state to the secretary of state of the United States at Washington, who in turn notifies congress of the action of the state legislature."

"The governor is in no way concerned other than to communicate his desires to the legislature in a message if he so wish. That plan was adopted by Governor Hughes of New York, who is strongly opposed to the amendment, and so informed the legislature. He has, however, no power to nullify that action."

Governor is powerless. "I do not believe Governor Willson will carry out his reported intention to veto the bill. When the matter is brought to his attention and he investigates he will find that he is powerless. His statement that he would veto the measure has freely been discussed in Washington, and the consensus there is that the governor was misquoted or laboring under a false impression regarding his authority."

"Every state legislature which has passed on the amendment has taken favorable action, and there is hardly any question but that the action of congress will be ratified by practicality all of the states."

Congressman James, who is a member of the board investigating the Hallinger matter, came to Kentucky to be present at the convention at Paducah Thursday when he will be re-nominated for congress from the First district. Mr. James has no opposition, and the committee will have nothing to do but meet and go through the formality of naming him.

Silent About Candidacy.

Congressman James declined to discuss the gubernatorial or senatorial situation insofar as he is concerned. His name frequently has been mentioned in both connections, and the nominations for either, it is believed, is his for the asking. Many of his friends are urging him to succeed United States Senator Paynter, and it is freely predicted that he will round out his political career as a member of the upper house in congress.

Mr. James would make no statement regarding the proceedings in the Hallinger probe or the controversy that brought it about. In the capacity of investigator, he occupies a position similar to a judge, and it would be indelicate for him to make any statement, he said. He expressed the opinion that the investigation will be concluded during the present session of congress, which he said probably would last until the first of March.

Mr. James was surrounded by a host of local Democrats of prominence at The Seelbach last night.

Postoffice Appointments. Washington, Feb. 22.—William A. Craven has been recommended for postmaster of Port Royal, Graves county. Thomas A. Bell will be appointed postmaster of Albion, Lewis county.

DE SAGAN'S FATHER DIES.

Fourth Duke of Talleyrand Was 74 Years Old.

Paris, Feb. 22.—Charles William Frederic Bona de Talleyrand-Perigord, fourth duke of Talleyrand and father of Prince de Sagan, who married the countess de Castellane, formerly Anna Bonid, died today. The duke was born in 1832.

All Affiliated Unions Not Called Out by Central Labor Union in Support of Trolley Line Employees

Hundred Thousand Men in Philadelphia Would Go Out if They Obeyed—Leader of Street Car Men Arrested

Philadelphia, Feb. 22. (Special.)—In sympathy with the employees of the street car companies, a special order may be issued by the Central Labor union, calling a general strike of all the members of affiliated labor unions in the city. Should the order be carried out by all of the unions at least 100,000 men will be out on the strike. The city has been quiet today and no riots have disturbed the citizens.

Police officials took the initiative in the war being waged between the striking car men and the officials of the Philadelphia Rapid Transit company when they arrested Clarence O. Pratt, the national organizer of the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employees on a warrant charging him with "conspiring to incite a riot."

The warrant was served on Pratt as he was leaving an automobile in which he had attended a mass meeting of the union carmen. He was locked up in the city hall and held to await a hearing. It is reported that warrants have been issued for other labor leaders as a result of a conference held between District Attorney Rotes, Director of Public Safety Clay and Magistrate Boston.

The police force was augmented by swearing in, for riot duty, the State Penitentiaries, an independent military organization of about 200 members, who are not affiliated with the national guard, but which organization performed service during the Spanish-American war.

Under the agreement which they hold their armory from the city, they are obliged to perform police duty when called upon. They will appear in their regular uniforms, armed with rifle and bayonet.

Plans are also discussed by commanders of the three regiments in the Philadelphia national guard in this city to mobilize their troops at a moment's notice. The mayor is entitled to call upon these troops under a special act of assembly. Adjutant General Stewart is here and if necessary a call for outside troops can be made at any time, but this is not contemplated at present.

The regular force of 3,500 police and 3,000 specials was also augmented by the swearing in of 66 park guards and 500 city employees of other departments. These men will begin service today and also relieve the worn-out policemen.

Five carloads of strike breakers reached here and were loaded on trolley cars at the Pennsylvania railroad station in West Philadelphia and taken to the car barns in that section. A large squad of mounted police escorted the cars and prevented a threatened demonstration by a mob of several thousand which had assembled.

ATTEMPT ON ZELAYA. Port Limon, Costa Rica, Feb. 22.—That an attempt was made on the life of former Nicaraguan President Zelaya, while on the steamer Liverpool, en route to Belgium, is the story printed by a paper in San Jose today, and generally credited here. The story is that while Zelaya was on the deck a young Nicaraguan, whose father's estate had been confiscated by the government, rushed at the former president and struck at him with a knife. Zelaya leaped aside and, drawing a revolver, shot his assailant in the arm. There were only a few witnesses to the attack and the story was suppressed, but it was made known yesterday by a Nicaraguan, who is said to have been on the vessel then.

Reports vary as to the number of cars in service. The company claimed that 700 were in operation, but the pickets watching all the car barns reported at the headquarters of the striking trolley men that only 124 cars were running on all lines. They also reported that nine crews of strike breakers who left the Frankford barn had deserted their cars.

Although President John J. Murphy, of the Central Labor union, declared he had called a general strike of all the thousands of union men here, no such action has been officially taken and more cool-headed union men declare it won't. Murphy made the statement about a general strike after the arrest and imprisonment of C. C. Pratt, leader of the street car strike, who was held today in $2,000 bail, charged with inciting a riot. A few cars are running today with four to six policemen on each. The strikers are getting newspapers and fairs well. Officials of the company say they won't offer or accept any compromise, but will fight to the end and are confident.

New Jail, Maybe

The jail committee will make an inspection of the county prison tomorrow for the purpose of making a report at the next meeting of the fiscal court. The question of building a new jail has been talked freely by some of the magistrates, and the committee will look over the condition of the prison thoroughly in order to State Penitentiaries, an independent military necessity of a new jail.

Grave of Old Paduke

On South Third Street

Old Chief Paduke, the notable old Indian in memory of whom the city was named, is buried on South Third street on the site occupied by the Lack Singletree company. There have been many stories as to the probable location of the old Indian chief and that it was a tradition, but at last the park commissioners, who have evolved the plan of marking the spots in the city of historic interest, have found the vicinity of the grave of the old warrior.

The resting place of Chief Paduke was located mainly through the efforts of Mrs. D. G. Murrell, wife of Dr. Murrell, one of the park commissioners. Several years ago Mrs. Murrell traced out the puzzle, and found some interesting history concerning the old Chief Paduke and his band of followers. Mrs. Murrell was told the site of the burial place by the late J. V. Greff, who was a blacksmith in Paducah for many years. His father came to western Kentucky when Paducah was a hamlet, and was thoroughly familiar with all of the early happenings. Frequently Mr. Greff's father had taken him when a lad to the spot where Paduke was buried, which was marked by a heap of logs as a monument to the old chief. Several years before his death Mr. Greff recalled the scene of the resting place of Paduke, and pointed it out as the site now occupied by the Singletree company.

The commissioners will mark the grave with a tablet. The form of tablets have not been decided on definitely, but it is planned to follow out the style in the federal cemetery, of having the bronze tablet at an angle so that it may be read easily.

Concerning the early history of Paduke before he came to Paducah

Mrs. Murrell was able to learn from Mrs. Eva Emery Dye, author of "The Crossing," from the war department and from R. G. Durrett, president of the Filson club of Louisville. Mrs. Dye has written historic works about the explorations of George Rogers Clark, and has made a close investigation of his travels in the west. From her it was learned that he was accompanied back by a tribe of Indians whose chief was Paduke. On his return the old chief was placed in charge of the territory in western Kentucky.

After his death the remainder of the tribe wandered west, and now according to the war department, there are fourteen survivors of a tribe called Paduke. These Indians went to the reservation from the east, and it is believed that they are the remnant of the tribe of old Paduke.

First Electric Car. Although not generally known Paducah had the first electric car in the state, two years before they were introduced in Louisville. The car was a small affair, but was operated on the Broadway line. It ran out of the present car shed on Broadway, and the commissioners propose to mark it as one of the sites of interest in the city.

Some Historic Sites. Another point of interest is the two-story frame building on Broadway east of the Palmer House. In this building General Lloyd Tilghman, whose memory is kept fresh by the handsome monument in Lang park, was held a prisoner during the Civil war. Opposite on the street, on the site occupied by the American Express company, was the headquarters of General Payne, who was in disfavor among the citizens because of his cruelty.

THREE HUNDRED MILLIONS COULD BE SAVED NATION

Senator Aldrich Proposes Joint Committee to Look Into Waste.

President Taft and Governor Hughes Fast Friends.

LATTER GOES TO NEW YORK.

Washington, Feb. 22.—Senator Aldrich said that, if permitted to do so, he would undertake to run the government of the United States for $300,000,000 a year less than it now costs. He was not presenting a formal proposition, but was making a speech to the senate on his bill providing for the creation of a commission to reform the business methods of the government.

He pleaded earnestly for the authority, saying that present methods were obsolete and involved the annual loss of at least $100,000,000. At his instance, the bill was so amended as to provide that the commission should be composed entirely of members of congress—five senators and five members of the house.

Taft and Hughes.

Washington, Feb. 22.—President Taft accepted an invitation to be the personal guest of Governor Hughes, of New York, at Albany on March 19 and 20. On the 19th the president is to deliver an address in the same city before the tuberculosis congress. This is the first time in many years that a president has thus visited a governor. The president also accepted invitations to attend the Trans-Mississippi congress, to be held in San Antonio, Tex., next November and has promised to try to attend for a few minutes the forestry and stream exposition to be held in Chicago in March.

Mr. Taft's visit to Albany undoubtedly will be made the occasion for a further conference of the Republican leaders regarding the political situation in that state. The legislature will be in session, and an excellent opportunity will be afforded for both the "up-state" and the "down-state" leaders to confer with the president and governor. Both Mr. Taft and Governor Hughes, however, have announced they will not suggest candidates.

The friendship between Governor Hughes and the president, which had been more or less formal up to that time, really dates from the Champlain bicentenary celebration along the shores of Lake Champlain last summer. For three or four days the two were together constantly, and came greatly to admire each other. Their speeches, which ran as high as four or five a day during the celebration, sparkled with an exchange of compliments, and to their friends afterward both the president and the governor spoke of their mutual regard. Both have taken frequent occasion to speak highly of each other.

The forestry and stream exposition is scheduled to open March 18, but the date may be advanced one day, on account of the president's visit to Chicago on March 17.

HANDSOME MEDAL TO BE GIVEN TO CONTEST WINNER

The handsome gold medal, which will be awarded to the winner of the oratorical contest between the Western Kentucky High schools next Friday night, has been received and is on exhibition at the jewelry store of J. L. Wolff. The medal is solid gold and is a pretty piece of work. It will be engraved appropriately with the name of the winner on it.

It seems that some of the High schools have not taken kindly to a girl representing the Paducah High school. No objection has been heard in Paducah, and the Madisonville students are not objecting. The Madisonville Hustler says:

"By an unanimous vote the Madisonville High school decided Friday night to enter a protest against Stella Anderson, representative of the Paducah High school in the annual debate between the High schools of Western Kentucky from participating in the contest to be held in that city Friday."

Mr. H. G. Smith returned to Eddyville today after a trip on business.

Coroner's Jury at Cairo Returns Non-Committal Verdict as to Who Killed Alex Halliday From Jail

Sheriff Issues Statement Concerning His Position--Testimony at Inquest--More Soldiers Arrive.

Cairo, Ill., Feb. 22.—A non-committal verdict of the coroner's jury was reached after an hour's deliberation at the inquest into the death of Alex. Halliday. Some of the jury were inclined to utter severe censure against the sheriff for employing the kind of deputies he did, and also because of the refusal to permit anyone to take charge of the body of the dead man; but two important facts were held to overhallow all else, viz: that the dead man had no right to be where he was at the time and on the mission which evidently brought him there, and that the sheriff was there as an officer of the law, engaged in upholding the law.

There was no doubt in the minds of the jury that a rifle had been used and that it was a steel bullet that had killed the deceased. There was evidence that several rifles were in possession of the deputies on guard; but it was impossible to determine from the testimony which of the deputies had used them, or which of them had fired the fatal shot.

The Testimony.

Ed Henderson, colored, one of the deputies, said he was called at about 11 o'clock; brought 38 and 44 caliber pistols with him. Repeated the instruction given him as others had done, from the sheriff; says was in north side of building in sheriff's office at north window at time of shooting. He shot three or four times at the mob with the 38 gun, but could not use the 44 gun; a white man was with him; didn't know who he was; if there was any one else in the room he did not know it; he had been constable for four years was now a deputy sheriff; he got his first message from Pearl Head, son of T. A. Head, who said the sheriff wanted him at once; his place of business is at 2613 Commercial avenue; saw two or three Winchester, but didn't know who used them.

Rudy Laurent testified a number of people came in his place; thought they had come from the Alexander club dance; they said they thought there was trouble at the court house; this was the first he knew about the trouble; Sam Wessinger came in to wash his face; saw him bleeding in the face, and a crowd came in behind him; believes G. B. Walker was there; who was shot in the leg; crowd got so thick could not see who was there; I heard Gene Ellis telephoned about the man lying dead or dying alongside the steps asking if some one could see if the man was dead or alive and who it was; understood the answer was would not let any one enter the yard or touch him. He said that no crowd congregated at his place prior to the trouble except several young men who had been to a dance; shortly after they left before they could have gotten to the wagon yard, heard shots.

Chief of Police.

Mart S. Egan, chief of police, testified, saying he got to court house about 2 o'clock; no one around court house; when he got there walked up to court house and called the sheriff; he answered and let him in; went in and asked him "who's that lying in the yard?" he said, "I don't know. It might be a dummy or it might be a body," and he said "let me go and see." I understand that one of the bunch of fellows that came up here was shot." The sheriff said "no, you can't go; my orders are not to let anybody go near the body." Egan said, "It might be some immediate attention would save his life, if he isn't dead," sheriff said, "I will not let you go," walked into circuit clerk's office, looked out of window to see the body; couldn't tell who it was because body was lying face down. Had no information that mob was forming; when the militia was picking up the body I went into the court house and telephoned Dr. Walsh to go to the hospital.

Alderman Frank J. Gorman, who lives across the street from the court house, testified he saw crowd of 25 or 30 men, more or less, standing on corner after the shooting; was not out in front at time of shooting; the

HOLD UP CASHIER.

St. Paul, Minn., Feb. 22.—Stanley Colburn, cashier of Carling's Uptown Cafe, was held up this morning by two men, who robbed the cash drawer of $300 and escaped, after shooting at a negro door tender and firing seven shots at men on the streets, who tried to stop them. Colburn was held up at the point of a revolver. They had hung around and watched diners pay bills until they thought surely there was enough for the risk.

STORE AT MARTIN IS BURGLARIZED BY TWO THIEVES

A wholesale robbery of clothing, marked for its boldness, took place Sunday night at Martin, Tenn., when Mathew Burke's clothing and notion store was quietly entered and robbed. Two negroes are believed to be the guilty ones and a reward of $100 has been offered for their apprehension.

Chief of Police Singery received a long distance telephone message from Marshal J. T. Vickers, of Martin, asking the police department to assist in locating the men. A description of the negroes was given and it is thought they are headed in this direction.

The negroes, according to the facts learned here, effected entrance to the store Sunday night and after selecting choice suits for themselves they made a lightning change and were transformed into real live sports. Then they proceeded to carry out their robbery intent. When the proprietor opened his store yesterday morning he found the place looted. Missing were five $22 suits of clothes, five pairs of patent leather shoes, one dozen red and blue flannel shirts, half a dozen new suit cases. In exchange for the property the negroes left their old suits. The robbery was one of the neatest ever pulled off at Martin. One of the negroes was described as having yellow skin and carrying a suit case. One arm was off. No description of the other was given, although it is said that both wore brand new clothing from head to feet. Efforts to locate them have proven fruitless so far.

TOBACCO PLANT CASE IS DECIDED

DEFENDANTS WIN SUIT IN CIRCUIT COURT--NO VACATION TAKEN.

Circuit court convened as usual today, as Judge Reed decided not to observe Washington's birthday owing to the large docket that is on hand for trial at this term of court.

The jury brought in a verdict for the defendants in the suit of J. H. Harvey against J. D. Carnell and Hugh Long. Harvey claimed that the two farmers wrecked a tobacco plant bed for him, while the defendants' proof was that a partnership was formed and they did not deny taking the plants, which they said were their part of the partnership. All of the men are prominent farmers of the western part of the county.

By agreement the suit of the city of Paducah against W. L. Berry was postponed until the seventh day of the March term.

The suit of Guy Deen against the West Kentucky Coal company for damages as the result of personal injuries was on trial this morning. Deen was employed at the barge plant, and while manipulating an air drill fell and injured his head.

The docket for tomorrow is: J. W. Acree against L. S. DuBois; Ada Goodall against the Illinois Central railroad; Charles Perkins against John W. Ogilvie; Maggie Ruoff against the Illinois Central railroad.

Kansas City, Feb. 22.—Clay Clement, the actor, died suddenly at the University hospital here of uraemic poisoning. Clay Clement for many years occupied a high position on the stage, his chief role, and the one in which he made his reputation, being his part of the German baron in "The New Dominion."

PYTHIAN KNIGHTS ENTERTAIN THEIR FRIENDS ROYALLY

In Honor of Forty-Sixth Anniversary of Their Order in America.

Informal Social Event at the Three Links Building.

SOME DELIGHTFUL FEATURES.

The celebration of the forty-sixth anniversary of Pythianism in America, held by Paducah lodge, No. 26, Monday night, was a most enjoyable affair. The lodge room in the Three Links building was well crowded with the members, their ladies and friends.

At 8:30 o'clock the meeting was called to order and a selection played by the six-piece orchestra under Prof. A. J. Bamberg. The Rev. G. W. Becke, of the Fountain Avenue Methodist church, offered the invocation, which was followed by music.

Mr. A. E. Stein, who presided over the session, gave a short address in which he touched upon the Pythian anniversary in detail, and also extended a welcome to the guests present. He was followed by Mr. Robert Pierce in a well rendered violin solo. "A Paducah Lodge Man's Dream" was given by R. L. Palmer, and it was full of witty things made applicable to the members of the local lodge.

A cornet duet was rendered by Messrs. Roy Bond and A. J. Bamberg. It was given as an extra number on the program, but was one of the best.

A social intermission of 20 minutes was announced. The features of this were several contests, the first one being that of needle threading by five gentlemen. To each one was given a card with five needles and five strands of thread. At a given signal all endeavored to place the threads through the eyes of the needles. It was comical to witness the awkward efforts exerted, but Mr. W. T. Reid was successful and received the prize, a knitting outfit, which was in keeping with the spirit of the contest.

The next contest was a nail-driving by five ladies. Each lady was given a hatchet, five nails and a block of wood. At a signal all started to work and the scene was indeed laugh-provoking. The ladies tried hard and it was a close race. Mrs. Will Reid finishing first. As a prize she received a saw, and was admonished as to its use.

A third contest was one in which ten persons endeavored, one at a time, to carry the most navy beans upon a silver knife from one end of the room to the other end. It looked easy, but the trials were different. Miss Madge Scerley was the only one in the ten who succeeded in getting one bean to the goal. She was awarded a can of baked beans as a prize.

The refreshments consisted of a dainty luncheon of turkey sandwiches, salad, pickles, cake and fruit packed in various kinds of fancy baskets, each person receiving one and eating its contents while remaining in the lodge room. During the time while refreshments were being served there was music and a general social intermingling.

After refreshments the Rev. G. W. Banks made a brief address upon the order and its growth, and told of its social and fraternal features.

The session came to a close at 11 o'clock with the singing of the closing ode, followed by the benediction by the Rev. G. W. Banks.

LADIES OF CHRISTIAN CHURCH BANQUET MEN

Arrangements have about been completed for the banquet to be given Monday evening, March 7, by the women of the First Christian church to the men. The banquet will be held in the primary Sunday school assembly hall on the second floor and some interesting and beneficial tests are to be made. Mr. James Utterback will be toastmaster. Those who will respond to toasts and their subjects will be: Dr. I. B. Howell, "The Elements of Success"; George C. Wallace, "Reducing the Church Debt"; Attorney Charles C. Grasshans, "The Bible School"; Stephen J. Corey, of Cincinnati, "Men and Missions." Mr. Corey is corresponding secretary of the board of foreign missions, and is to be the guest of the Rev. W. A. Fite, the pastor, that week. He will be here in the interest of the work with which he is connected.

Miss Cora Graham is ill at the home of her brother, Mr. Herman Graham, 1301 Jefferson street.

Daily Thought.
Are you sure of the honors you are striving for are not dishonors?

Everything comes to him who waits; but not to him who wastes his time waiting.

We trust the forestry service will take this occasion to condemn Washington's conservation policy.

We can forgive those who do us unmitigated injury. The difficulty is in forgiving those, whom we have provoked to do us injury.

PROFESSOR CARNAGIE.
We would ask no better judgment of Prof. J. A. Carnegie's administration of the Paducah public schools than the opinion of the gentlemen, who now compose the board of trustees; and regarding him, as they evidently do, they acted wisely in electing him for four years. It gives him a longer time in which to develop his policy, so that it is not necessary for him to act impulsively in an effort to produce premature results; it puts the teaching force upon notice that the status quo will continue four years; it removes the danger of manipulating school board elections in the interest of factions; and then, above all and comprehending all, is the wise idea, that when you have a man, you consider satisfactory, hold on to him and give him every opportunity to produce the best service that is in him.

MOBS AND THE LAW.
Ed O. Leigh, in the Bowling Green Messenger comes out strong on the side of law and order, in his comment on the Cairo riot, declaring the sheriff was right in protecting his prisoner. Friend Ed says:

"The action of Sheriff Nellis is to be commended. He was only obeying his sworn duty when he protected the prisoners under his charge from mob violence, even though it meant the taking of human life. There is no place in our plan of government for the mob. Where a community is allowed to govern itself its officers are as good as the people select and as good as they deserve. When it becomes necessary to resort to mobs, it is high time to resort to revolution. The most satisfactory revolution is always the revolution of the ballot box, and if the sanctity of that function of government is overthrown, then any measure is permissible. If a respectable portion of the government believes that the officers of the government are corrupt and if there is no remedy at the ballot box, then will be time to talk about raids and revolution."

Those are points which we emphasized during the night rider troubles, Ed.

GEORGE WASHINGTON.
Who shall be greatest in Kingdom asked the disciples, and the master for answer removed their sandals, and washed and wiped their feet, scorched by the hot sand and poisoned by the alkali dust of that dry oriental country. Was he teaching humility? No, he was teaching nobility. He was impressing on them, through them, on all men who could come after, the one doctrine with them there can be no middle round. The sheriff must shoot to kill or give up the gun, the keys and the prisoner. There is no better way to stimulate the zeal of the sheriff in the discharge of his duty than to make it impossible for him to hold office after having failed to fight when confronted by a mob. Nearly any sheriff will shoot rather than face the prospect of losing his office, and a sheriff who will not shoot to defend a prisoner—however guilty and depraved—is not worthy of the office.

The sheriff who stands off the mob, and fires upon it, if need be, is not merely protecting a prisoner from would-be murderers. He is protecting organized society against organized violence. The principle involved is one upon which the efficiency of Democratic government rests.

While there is much to say in behalf of the Illinois law regarding sheriffs, there is nothing to be said in commendation in Cairo. If it is true that eight of the deputies were negroes, a potential cause of future ill feeling between the races, and of bloodshed, exists. No matter how useful the negro deputy may be, or how much entitled to political consideration, his occupancy of a position as a peace officer in southern Illinois, where race friction has existed for a half century, and occasionally resulted in lawlessness, cannot tend to conserve the peace. And peace officers who menace the peace are, regardless of their freedom and equality and their right to their office under the constitution and the law, failures.—Courier-Journal.

Was the Omission Intentional Or by Mistake.
A determined fight is now being waged by the millionaires of the east against the proposed amendment to the constitution of the United States providing for taxes on incomes. All that money and skillful manipulation of legislatures can do, will be, and has been resorted to. There are millions at stake, and the man that could guarantee the defeat of the amendment would receive at least a cool million.

The Kentucky legislature and its action has been discussed. At least one well known lobbyist, it is reported, while in the east, was in conference with those who are seeking to defeat the amendment. Whether he undertook the job in Kentucky and how much he is to receive, if successful, we are not informed. He is shrewd enough, however, to know that there is no possible hope to defeat the resolution by open vote, in either house. But he is well aware of the fact that if an important vote is left out, the resolution will be operative. And herein lies the danger to this resolution.

The resolution has been twice adopted and one time material words were omitted. As passed, the essentially important words, "on incomes," were left out.

The proposed amendment reads as follows:

"The congress shall have power to lay and collect taxes on incomes, from whatever source derived, without apportionment among the several states and without regard to any census or enumeration."

As adopted is read:

"The congress shall have power to lay and collect taxes, from whatever source derived, without apportionment among the several states, and without regard to any census or enumeration."

The amendment, as presented, it will be seen, authorized congress to lay and collect taxes on incomes; and that is its purpose. As ratified by the general assembly, no such authority was given.

If this omission is the result of mistake, it is the duty of the general assembly to see that such a mistake does not occur again. If willfully done, the guilty parties should be ascertained and punished.—Kentucky State Journal.

People Will Repudiate.
Any rule of the legislature that prevents the whole body from voting upon any proposition upon which there is a division is gag rule and the people will repudiate those responsible for it when they get a chance.—Bowling Green News.

The Political Buzzards.
It is not likely that the Frankfort investigation of bribery will find any senator guilty. The work was too well done for that. But the public has seen the political buzzards hanging over Frankfort and that is enough. No matter what the committee reports the verdict of the public will be guilty, but not proven.—Elizabethtown News.

A "Turning Over" Is Due.
It looks as if the truth as to the rumored charges against various members of the senate and house will not come out—not by any legislative investigation. An investigation has been ordered by the senate of the charges made by Senator Watkins, but the opinion is said to prevail in Frankfort that the investigation will amount to nothing.

But some day the truth will come out. It must come out. The people are long suffering, but the time is coming when the Kentucky general assembly is going to get a turning over.—Owensboro Inquirer.

The Cairo Hatfield.
The Illinois law that removes a sheriff from office when he lets the mob get a prisoner works well. No one who is not utterly without sympathy for his erring fellowman can take pleasure in contemplating the results of the pitched battle in Cairo between the sheriff and the mob, but it is better for a mob leader to be killed than for a mob murder to be allowed to take place.

Persons who join mobs are advocates of murder and exponents of

with them there can be no middle round. The sheriff must shoot to kill or give up the gun, the keys and the prisoner. There is no better way to stimulate the zeal of the sheriff in the discharge of his duty than to make it impossible for him to hold office after having failed to fight when confronted by a mob. Nearly any sheriff will shoot rather than face the prospect of losing his office, and a sheriff who will not shoot to defend a prisoner—however guilty and depraved—is not worthy of the office.

The sheriff who stands off the mob, and fires upon it, if need be, is not merely protecting a prisoner from would-be murderers. He is protecting organized society against organized violence. The principle involved is one upon which the efficiency of Democratic government rests.

Court Judge Reed does not always grant as much time to speak as some of the lawyers would like. In the trial of the suit yesterday afternoon the lawyers said five or six minutes would be plenty of time to argue the case. "Well," said Judge Reed, "you may have ten minutes on the side and Mr. Sheriff, please see that the gentlemen take all their time." The lawyers were equal to the occasion, however, and what time was not spent in arguing the points of the case was consumed in relating a few jokes.

CORONER'S JURY

Shooting was over when I got out on the street; six or seven shots were fired on the west side of street; shots fired in the air.

Horton Crohan testified he was in middle of street; had come from a dance; was on his way home; did not get shot; there were no shots close to him; thought he heard bullets whizzing and ran across the street and ducked into an alley and back of the building and stayed there until the shooting stopped. Did not see anyone shooting towards court house; stayed there 15 minutes until everything was quiet; sounded to him like volley shooting fast; there were a few scattering shots.

Capt. W. P. Greeney, of Co. K, stated Co. K had smoker and drill in memory; stayed at armory until about 10:30; went home some time after; while at home Nellis called him up and said he was wanted; told him he would come immediately; went out to get men; left Lieutenant Thistlewood at armory; told him to send men out in details; went to saloons and other resorts looking for his men; took bugler with me to court house; told sheriff am here ready to report for duty; sheriff asked "when are your men coming?" and am getting company together as fast as can; said understand there is a body in the yard; he said he had information from governor not to let anyone disturb that body until company came; said he was there to report as company commander; sheriff said when your company comes you can take the body; got automobile; got as many men as could and reported to sheriff and said I would take charge of body, which in my judgment thought was alive; didn't search the body; no weapon visible on body.

Ross K. Maloney testified: I am one who was robbed by John Pratt last week; had no talk with Alex Halliday within past six weeks; the statement which appeared in the Post-Dispatch on Thursday and he said, "Halse, I'd take my life in my hands for you, I'm ready to lead a mob to lynch the negro that robbed you; he certainly deserves lynching," etc.; said she had nothing to do with the mob; her only regret was that she didn't kill the man and save this horrible tragedy.

John Thistlewood testified: Went to armory at 8 o'clock; not notified with Co. K now; Captain Greeney told him there might be trouble and might be called out; went home at about 10:30 to 11 o'clock on street car; saw Chief Egan on one side of car, Sheriff Nellis on other side and several colored men who I supposed to have been deputy sheriffs; don't know where they got off whether at court house or not; paid no further attention to them.

William H. Sullivan testified: Went up town about time of shooting; saw crowd standing on corner; few of them in saloon; went in saloon; came out; all moved toward court house; got about middle of crossing on Twentieth street when shooting started; stepped behind 10th board on corner; about 50 to 75 men were in front of court house; saw some of crowd go inside gate; heard no one say what they intended doing; was in toilet at Laurent's when crowd left there; when Captain Greeney arrived with soldiers accompanied the remains of Halliday to hospital; thought there was still some signs of life in him; did not see any shooting from opposite the court house; didn't see nor hear any shooting from sidewalk or street toward court house.

Albert Frost, a colored deputy sheriff, said he was not at court house night of assault.

Charles Bowler, negro deputy: Was requested to go to court house by Deputy Jones; was present when sheriff gave his instructions; sheriff was to fire the first signal and at that signal deputies were to fire in air; then, if mob continued to advance to try to stop them; was there when sheriff went on porch directly behind George Jackson; was in hall; after a shot fired, followed by another shot, and the deputies began firing; witnesses did not get chance to fire because gun was pump gun and wasn't familiar with it, there was a ringing noise like a shot passed him and Deputy Fuller when he was by the doors which were both partially open; after first shot was fired Sheriff Nellis fired in the air and jumped behind a pillar on the porch.

Jamaa Douglas testified: Had 28 Colt revolver; shot twice; I shot from the sheriff's office, the room on the right; didn't aim at crowd at all; I shot through the window that was raised; didn't know who had Winchester rifle; his brother had Winchester rifle; but had no ammunition.

The Jury's Verdict.
We, the undersigned Jurors, sworn to inquire into the death of Alexander M. Halliday, on oath do find that he came to his death by a gun shot wound in the right neck, caused by a bullet fired from a weapon held in the hands of one of Sheriff Fred D. Nellis' deputies, fired at deceased from one of the north windows of the circuit clerk's office while the said Alexander M. Halliday was in the Alexander county court house yard in Cairo, Alexander county, Illinois, about 12:30 a. m. Feb. 18th, A. D. 1910.

Sheriff Nellis' Statement.
The following explanatory statement was authorized last night by Sheriff Fred D. Nellis, regarding some matters connected with the mob and shooting of last Friday morning, concerning which there has been much unfavorable criticism:

"Shortly after the attack on the jail by the mob, I telephoned Governor Deneen advising him of the attack; that the mob was repulsed by my deputies, and I thought that one man had been killed and two or three wounded; but that I was afraid that the object appeared to be the main killed might be a dummy and only a ruse to get the mob into the jail. I also advised the governor that Company K had not arrived; that I feared another attack, and was, by reason of the smallness of my ammunition fearful of the result of further mob violence.

Governor Deneen advised me that Company K had been ordered to report to me and should be here soon, and for me to hold fast, guard the jail at all hazards, allowing no one to enter or leave the premises, pending arrival of the reinforcement of Company K, but the statement that Governor Deneen specifically ordered that the body of the man killed could not be touched or removed is inaccurate.

tion with the removal of the body from the court house yard at the particular time, and before the arrival of Company K, which I expected at any minute, that those of the general public who may wish to criticize my action in that matter overlook the fact that had I allowed this to be done, knowing the condition existing, it would have in my opinion meant the jeopardizing of not only the life of my deputies and myself, but of the prisoners confined in the jail; and if the body had been taken away and recognized by friends it would have caused another attack, which I would have been powerless to repulse."

Notes of the Day.
Mrs. Chapin, mother of Mrs. Van Oaten, residing on Sycamore street, became frightened last night at what she believed to be some one trying to enter her home. She waited some time in much agony until her daughter arrived, who called up the military headquarters at the court house. A detachment of soldiers hurried to the house in an auto, but found nothing out of the way. If there had been any intruder he had made his escape.

More Soldiers Arrived.
Company H from Shelbyville, arrived at 1:45 yesterday afternoon in special train from that place. Capt. William Klaser and Lieut. Vance Contright are the officers in command. There are about fifty men in the company. Adjutant General Dickson says the additional force was called to patrol the streets at night. The homes of some of the deputies who were in the shoot-up are being protected and several of the negro deputies are sticking pretty close to the court house.

Benton, Ky., Feb. 22. (Special.)—A man giving his name as Albert Long and representing himself as a drummer for the Johnson Bros. Vinegar company, of Louisville, induced Vaughan Brothers, livemen of this place, to identify him yesterday afternoon at the bank of Marshall county, and cashed a worthless check amounting to $35. He made a hurried exit from town afterwards, catching the next train out for Paducah. The forgery was discovered shortly after he departed. The man was about 30 years old and weighed 150 pounds. His eyes are crossed and his upper front teeth were filled with gold. He wore a black overcoat, black hat and a white vest.

Mr. E. A. Strow, of Benton, was in the city last night.

BRIEF SPEECH

FROM THRONE STARTS PARLIAMENT DEBATES.

London, Feb. 22.—In a momentous speech from the throne his majesty outlined the plan of the ministerial campaign against the house of lords as follows:

"Recent experience has disclosed serious difficulties due to recurring differences of strong opinion between the two branches of the legislature. Proposals will be laid before you with all convenient speed to define the relations between the houses of parliament so as to secure the undivided authority of the house of commons over finance and its predominant influence in legislation.

"These measures, in the opinion of my advisers, should provide that this house should be so constituted and empowered as to exercise impartially in regard to the proposed legislation the functions of initiation, revision and subject to the proper safeguards of delay."

According to the fact that the expenditures authorized by the last parliament were being incurred and met by a recourse of temporary borrowing, the speech declared:

"Arrangements must be made at the earliest possible moment to deal with the financial situation thus created."

This was taken as a confirmation of Premier Asquith's avowed determination to regularize the present conduct of financial affairs before attacking the house of lords. The most important pronouncement was reserved for the end of the speech, which closed with the paragraph on the relations between the two houses as given above.

The reading of the speech consumed only four minutes and at its close their majesties retired and the session was suspended for two hours.

STOMACH MISERY FOR OVER SIX YEARS.

Read what Mr. Hoffman, landlord of the Webster hotel, writes:

"I suffered misery and intense pain from stomach trouble for over six years, and all the doctoring that I did or medicines I used were of no avail until about two years ago, when I used a treatment of Mi-o-na. The first few days' treatment helped me greatly, and upon using it a while I was made entirely free from any stomach trouble or complaint whatever. Since the cure by Mi-o-na I have regained my weight, I eat and sleep well, am never nervous, and my entire general health is much better."—Max M. Hoffman, Webster, N. Y., Aug. 2, 1909.

Mi-o-na stomach tablets relieve distress in five minutes. They act like magic. They are guaranteed to cure sour stomach, gas eruptions, heartburn, dizziness, biliousness and nervousness, or money back. For sale by druggists everywhere and by Gilbert's drug store for 50 cents a large box.

WASHINGTON'S BIRTHDAY CELEBRATED QUIETLY

The 178th anniversary of the Birth day of George Washington was celebrated quietly in Paducah today.

As usual business was quiet today to the day being a national holiday, and the banks and postoffice were closed. The retail stores remained open throughout the day. The Sun was issued at noon to give the employees a holiday. The postoffice was open from 9 o'clock until 10 o'clock this morning, while the mail carriers made only one delivery. The Illinois Central railroad employees were given a holiday as the shops were closed. The banks observed the day, and the public library was closed also. The American flag was conspicuous on all of the public buildings, as Mayor Smith issued an order for the flags to be displayed. On some private residences the flag was displayed also.

One Caught at Fulton.

Fulton, Ky., Feb. 22. (Special.)—"Nubbs", the one-armed negro, who has served four terms for robbery, was caught at the Illinois end of the I. C. bridge by a railroad man named Jim Wilson, and will be taken back to Martin. The robbers were traced here by dilapidated labels. They were "dressed to kill." Marshal Parham, of Martin, and I. C. Detective Cronin, followed them and ten men joined the officers here. The mob broke up a negro dance, before it dispersed.

Man Hunt in Missipi.

Carthage, Miss., Feb. 22.—A man hunt is on today in the swampy along the Pearl river, after an exciting night chase by the sheriff's posse in pursuit of Walter Johnson, who escaped from the Carthage jail late yesterday. After being shot by a member of the posse, Johnson plunged into the half frozen river and swam to the opposite bank, disappearing in the underbrush. Johnson was arrested for stealing.

S.S.S. NATURE'S CURE FOR RHEUMATISM

In a disease so painful as Rheumatism, medicines containing opiates and nerve-quieting drugs are often used. Such treatment is dangerous not only because it frequently causes the sufferer to become addicted to the drug habit, but medicines of this nature are always injurious to the system. Rheumatism is a disease of the blood, and its cure depends entirely upon a thorough purification of the circulation. As long as the blood remains saturated with uric acid, an inflammatory condition of the nerves, muscles and tendons of the body will exist, and the pains, aches, soreness, and hot, feverish flesh of Rheumatism will continue. The one safe and sure cure for Rheumatism is S.S.S. It is nature's remedy for this disease, made entirely of the healing, cleansing juices and extracts of roots, herbs and barks from the natural forests. S.S.S. does not contain anything that is in the slightest way injurious to the system. It is absolutely and purely vegetable, and free from opiates or sedatives of any kind. S.S.S. cures Rheumatism by removing the uric acid from the circulation, it makes the blood pure, rich and healthy so that instead of depositing sharp, uratic impurities into the muscles, nerves, joints and bones, it nourishes every portion of the body with natural, healthful properties. Book on Rheumatism and any medical advice free to all who write and request it.

TART PROGRAM NOW FEASIBLE

NARROWING DOWN OF POLICIES GAINS PRESIDENT FRIENDS.

These Measures Will Be Taken Out of Committee as Soon as Possible and Rushed Through.

THE RAILROAD BILL UP NEXT

Washington, Feb. 22.—The announcement from the white house that President Taft had by his own motion cut down to four the number of administration measures he would demand at the present session of congress received by Republican leaders with unqualified feelings of relief. The administration program was so formidable that members who are warmly supporting the Taft policies hardly knew where to begin.

A schedule including only the bills to amend the interstate commerce law, provide for the regulation of the issuance of injunctions, start Arizona and New Mexico on the road to statehood and validate the withdrawal of public lands for conservation purposes is regarded as quite possible of attainment. Most of these measures, it is believed, can be put through the senate while the house is still wrestling with appropriation bills.

When it was reported at the capital that the president would be satisfied with the enactment of the four measures named steps were taken to bring all of these matters out of committee at the earliest possible date.

The Railroad Bill.

The postal savings bank bill is already before the senate and an agreement between the supporters of amending amendments is assured. It is regarded as practically certain that the bill can be passed during the coming week.

Hearings have been closed by the senate committee on interstate commerce on the bill to create a commerce court and strengthen the existing laws for the regulation of common carrier corporations. The committee will meet and at that time an effort will be made to report the bill at once.

Although the senate could not be ready to take up the railroad bill until late in the week, it is being argued by members of the committee that the bill should be reported, so as to have it printed and give senators a few days to study its provisions before it is put on its passage. As soon as the postal savings bank bill is out of the way the railroad bill will be made the order of business, and probably will be held before the senate constantly until passed, except for the limited time that must be given to the consideration of appropriation bills.

Taft's Conservation Plan. No decision has been reached in the house committee on interstate commerce on the proposition to eliminate from the administration bill the provision for the creation of a court of commerce. Even if this is done, it is practically certain that the court feature will be retained by the senate and the question of establishing a new tribunal to try cases appealed from decisions of the interstate commerce commission would thus be thrown into conference.

The conservation bill that President Taft is determined shall be passed is that which gives to the president the unrestricted power to withdraw public lands for settlement and place them in reserves that will continue in force until restored by him or by congress to the portion of the public domain that shall be open to settlement. In the meantime an effort will be made by a special committee of western senators to perfect other conservation measures so that they will be ready for consideration at the next session.

Hearings are now in progress on the statehood bill, but it is unlikely that the measure will be brought out of the senate committee on territories until the postal savings bank and railroad bills are out of the way.

The fourth measure to be proposed for passage is that relating to the issuance of injunctions. Several bills on this subject have been prepared, but they have not been considered by committees. The measure introduced

LOOKING FOR SHORTAGE.

Closed Bank Reopens, but $100,000 Is Unaccounted For.

Indianapolis, Ind., Feb. 22.—The First National bank of Tipton, Ind., wants to know what became of the $100,000 which, it is alleged, was taken from the bank by William H. Marker, former cashier, and Noah R. Marker, his brother and assistant cashier, previous to the closing of that institution in July, 1909, when the cashier is also alleged to have absconded with the funds.

The bank was later reopened, but, it is said, the money is still unaccounted for. A petition filed today, charges that on October 20, 1909, the Markers concealed it with the purpose of defrauding the creditors. The bank now asks that they be required to disclose the whereabouts of this money. The case will be heard on March 7.

A CHEMIST'S OPINION ON SKIN DISEASES.

Mr. W. J. Gilbert, the chemist and druggist, says that in all his scientific and business experience he has never found any remedy so successful as ZEMO for the treatment of Eczema, Itching Skin Diseases, Itch, Pimples, Blackheads, and all diseases of the skin and scalp. He says that not only do its curative qualities make it popular but also the fact that it is a clean, liquid remedy for external use. A wonderful improvement over the old grossy salves and lotions which are not only unpleasant to use but do not destroy the germ life that cause the disease. ZEMO draws the germs to the surface and destroys them, leaving the skin clear and healthy. Can be used freely on infants. Mr. W. J. Gilbert will gladly supply those who call with a free sample bottle of ZEMO and a booklet which explains in simple language all about Skin Diseases and how to cure yourself at home with ZEMO.

It has been announced that the food price committee will not hold open sessions and some members of congress charge that this means a report giving causes other than tariff for the high cost of necessities. Chairman Lodge promises, however, that every suspected reason for the increased cost of foodstuffs during the last two years will be weighed and that the tariff will receive careful scrutiny.

Too Good for the Prodigal. Speaking of the discouragements that sometimes come to the lot of a well-meaning clergyman, Rev. Dr. E. T. Jeffers, a professor in the College Institute in New York, said in a confab with Presbyterian ministers in the Witherspoon building.

"There is always some flint-hearted individual in your congregation to frown on the 'prodigal sons,' 'backsliders,' 'lost sheep' and other penitents who return to the fold. 'I was once welcoming a prodigal son and was just warning up to my subject when one of these individuals in the congregation said in a very audible whisper:

"Corn husks would be too good for the 'critter.'"—Philadelphia Times.

German Paper Industry.

Deputy Consul General Simon W. Hummer of Frankfurt furnishes the following information concerning the depressed condition of the German paper industry and the assigned causes:

The annual report of the Association of German Paper Manufacturers for 1908 recommended a contraction of operations as overproduction had gorged the market and caused shrinkage in the sale of the output. The German paper market keenly feels the stoppage of orders from the United States, but on the other hand the decreased competition from American paper mills is a favoring factor. German paper can only be exported by making sacrifices to overcome the high custom duties of the principal countries, whereas the German imports on foreign coarse paper and cardboard have proved inadequate to shut out imports.

The average dividend of the German joint stock companies engaged in the manufacture of paper was only 3 1/2 per cent on their share capital for 1908.

To meet adverse conditions of the market the manufacturers reduced their prices and then tried to unite the trade for the establishment of a price convention; these combinations, however, has not been accomplished. The regular paper manufacturers have been further handicapped by the action of the wood pulp (cellulose) factories in making paper of all kinds. This move will be more damaging in the future, as paper manufacture by the wood pulp works expands, for the latter have great advantage in the lower cost of the raw materials. The average net dividends paid by the German cellulose factories last year was 9.1 per cent on the invested capital. The paper making trade has not improved in 1909.

A SAFEGUARD TO CHILDREN.

"Our two children of six and eight years have been since infancy subject to colds and croup. About three years ago I started to use Foley's Honey and Tar, and it has never failed to prevent and cure these troubles. It is the only medicine I can get the children to take without a row." The above from W. C. Ornstern, Green Bay, Wis., duplicates the experience of thousands of other users of Foley's Honey and Tar.—Gilbert's Drug Store.

"I am told that King Edward sends a daily message to his chief complaining him on his dinner." "Yes," answered Mr. Ornstern, "we are all of one common humanity. Even a king has to go out of his way to jelly the cook."—Washington Star.

HALEY'S COMET

A MENACE TO HUMAN LIFE.

Chemists are of the opinion, that if astronomers are correct in their calculations, that the cynogen gas that follows in the wake of Halley's comet will destroy human life. We have always considered astronomers scrupulously exact in their calculations of the size, distance and speed, at which planets move in their orbits, because we know they tell us, to a minute, when the sun or moon will be in eclipse. We, in this locality, have felt ourselves almost immune or safe from disasters, etc., but to us there is an ominous foreboding in these predictions of Halley's comet and the risk of life to the weak and infirm anticipated, in May, when this comet passes the earth. It is never dangerous to be safe, and those who are physically weak should prepare for the ordeal, which we are informed will only last for a few minutes as the comet is traveling 1,140 miles a minute. We advise you to insure yourselves against this risk by taking Hays' Specific, which will eliminate the malaria from the system, purify the blood and prepare yourself for what may not come.

The Carnegie Institution last year distributed $625,300 among nearly 500 persons engaged in scientific research.

Tales For a Winter Evening

The Mare and the Motor

From the "Old Home House"

By JOSEPH C. LINCOLN

Copyright, 1907, by A. S. Barnes &amp; Co.

TODD had got on my nerves. 'Twas Peter's ad. that brought 'em down. You see, 'twas 'long toward the end of the season at the Old Home, and Brown had been advertising in the New York and Boston papers to "hang the leftovers," as he called it. Besides the regular gush about the "breath of old ocean" and the "simple, cleanly living of the bygone days we dream about" there was some new froth concerning hunting and fishing. You'd think the wild geese roosted on the flagpole nights and the bluesth clogged up the bay so's you could walk on their back fins without wetting your feet—that is, if you wore rubbers and trod light.

"There," says Peter T., waving the advertisement and crowing gladsome. "They'll take to that like your temperance nunt to brandy cough drops. We'll have to put up barbed wire to keep 'em off."

"Lunaph!" grunts Cap'n Joudab. "Anybody but a born fool 'll know there ain't any shooting down here this time of year."

Peter looked at him sorrowful. "Pop," says he, "did you ever hear that Solomon answered a summer hotel ad.? You set back and count the clock ticks."

Well, that's 'bout all we had to do. We got boarders enough from that ridiculous advertisement to fill every spare room we had, including Joudab's and mine. And the cap'n had to bunk in the barn loft, but there was some satisfaction in that. It gave us an excuse to get away from the "sports" in the smoking room.

The Todds was part of the haul. He was a little, dried up man, single and a minister. Nigh 's I could find out, he'd given up preaching by the request of the doctor and his last congregation. He had a notion that he was a mighty hunter afore the Lord, like Shurub in the Bible, and he'd come to the Old Home to bag a few gross of geese and ducks.

His sister was an old maid and slim, neither of which fallings was from choice, I caltate. She wore eye-glasses and a veil to "preserve her complexion," and her idee seemed to be that native Cape Codders lived in trees and ate coconuts. She called 'em "barbarians, utter barbarians." Whenever she piped "James," her brother had to drop everything and report on deck. She was skipper of the Todd craft.

Them Todds was what Peter T. called "the limit and a chip or two over." The other would be gunners and fishermen were satisfied to slum shift after sandpeeps or hook a stray scallop or a hake. But 'twasn't so with brother James Todd and sister Clarissa. "Ducks!" it was in the advertising, and nothing but ducks they wanted. Clarissa, she commenced to hunt maldine p'inted concerning fraud.

Finally we lost patience, and Peter T. he said they'd got to be quieted somehow or he'd do some shooting on his own hook; said too much Toddy was going to his head. Then I suggested taking 'em down the beach some-where on the chance of seeing a stray coot or loon or something—anything that could be shot at. Joudab and Peter agreed 'twas a good plan, and we matched to see who'd be guide. And I got stuck, of course. My luck again.

So the next morning we started, me and the Rev. James and Clarissa in the Greased Lightning. Peter's new motor launch. Clarissa set around doing the heavy contemptuous and turning up her nose at creation generally. It must have his drawbacks, this roasting so far above the common flock.

Well, by and by Lonesome Huckleberries' shanty hove in sight, and I was glad to see it, although I had to answer a million questions about Lonesome and his history.

I told the Todds that, so far as nationality was concerned, he was a little of everything, like a picked up dingy—principally Eysellian and Portuguese, I caltate, with a streak of Gay Head Indian. He lives in the patch-work shanty on the beach down there, he is deaf and dumb, drives a liver colored, balky mare that no one but himself and his daughter Becky can handle, and he has a love for bad rum and a temper that's landed him in the Wellmouth leekup more than once or twice. It's one of the best gunners alongshore, and at this time he owned a flock of live decoys that he'd refused as high as $15 apiece for. I told all this and a lot more.

When we struck the beach Clarissa, she took her paint box and umbrella and mosquito net and the rest of her cargo and went off by herself to "sketch."

James and me went perusing up and down that beach in the blazing sun looking for something to shoot. We went way beyond Lonesome's shanty, but there wa'n't nobody to home, Todd was a cheerful talker, but limited. His favorite remark was, "Oh, I say, my dear man?" That's what he kept calling me, "my dear man." Now, my name ain't exactly a Claude de Montmorency for prettiness, but "Barzille" will fetch me alongside a good deal quicker'n "my dear man." I'll tell you that.

We frogged it up and down all the forenoon, but didn't get a shot at nothing but one stray "squawk" that had come over from the Cedar swamp. I told James 'twas a canvasback, and he blazed away at it, but missed it by three fathoms, as might have been expected.

Finally my game leg—rheumatiz, you understand—began to give out, so I flops down in the shade of a sand bank to rest, and the reverend goes poking off by himself.

I caltate I must have fell asleep, for when I looked at my watch it was close to 1 o'clock and time for us to be getting back to port. I got up and stretched and took an observation, but further 'n Clarissa's umbrella on the sky line I didn't see anything stirring. Brother James wa'n't visible.

I started over toward the Greased Lightning. I'd gone only a little ways when "hang, bang!" goes both barrels of a shotgun, and that Todd critter busts out hollering like all possessed. "Hoony!" he squeals in that squeaky voice of his. "Hoony, I've got 'em, I've got 'em!"

I left my own gun laying where 'twas and piled up over the edge of that sand bank like a cat over a fence. And then I see a sight. There was James hopping up and down in the beach grass, squealing like a gulch hen with a sore throat and waving his gun with one wing—arm, I mean—and there in front of him in the foam at the edge of the surf was two ducks dead as Nohelunduezzar, two of Lonesome Huckleberries' best decoy ducks—ducks he'd tamed and trained and thought more of than anything else in this world—except rum, maybe—and the rest of the flock was digging up the beach for him as if they'd been telegraphed for and squawking "Fire!" and "Murder!"

Course I'd knowa about Lonesome's owing them decoys—told Todd about 'em, too—but I hadn't seen 'em nowhere along shore, and I sort of caltate they was locked up in Lonesome's henhouse, that being his usual way when he went to town.

"I've got 'em!" hollers Todd, grinning till I thought he'd swallow his own ears. "I shot 'em all myself!" "You overkilling!" I begin, but I didn't get any further. There was a rattling noise behind me, and I turned to see Lonesome Huckleberries him self setting on the seat of his old truck wagon and glaring over the hammer head of that balky mare of his straight at brother Todd and the dead decoys.

For a minute there was a kink of tabern, like them they have at church fairs, all four of us, including the mare, keeping still, like we was frozen. But 'twas only for a minute. Then it turned into the liveliest moving picture that ever I see. Lonesome couldn't swear—belug a dummy—but if ever a man got profane with his eyes he did right then. Next thing I knew he tossed both hands into the air, clawed two handfuls out of the atmosphere, reached down into the cart, grabbed a pitchfork and piled out of that wagon and after Todd. There was murder coming, and I could see it.

"Tun, you look!" I hollers, desperate. James didn't know what he'd done, I caltate, but he judged 'twas his move. He dropped his gun and put down the shore like a wild man, with James was hopping up and down in the grass squealing like a gulch hen.

Lonesome after him. I tried to follow, but my rheumatiz was too big a hindrance. All I could do was yell.

You never'd have picked out Todd for a sprinter—not to look at him you wouldn't—but when they went out of sight amongst the sand hills 'twas anybody's race.

I was scared. I knew whn Lonesome's temper was, 'specially when it had been laid with some Wellmouth Port no license liquor. He'd been took up once for half killing some boys that tormented him, and I figured if he got within pitchfork distance of the Todd critter he'd make him the leastest divine that ever picked a text. I commenced to hobble back after my gun.

But I'd forgot Sister Clarissa. "Fore I'd humped fur I heard her calling to me."

"Mr. Wingate," says she, "get in here at once."

There she was setting on the seat of Lonesome's wagon, holding the reins and as cool as a white frost in October.

"Proced," says she to the mare. "Git dap!" says I, and we started.

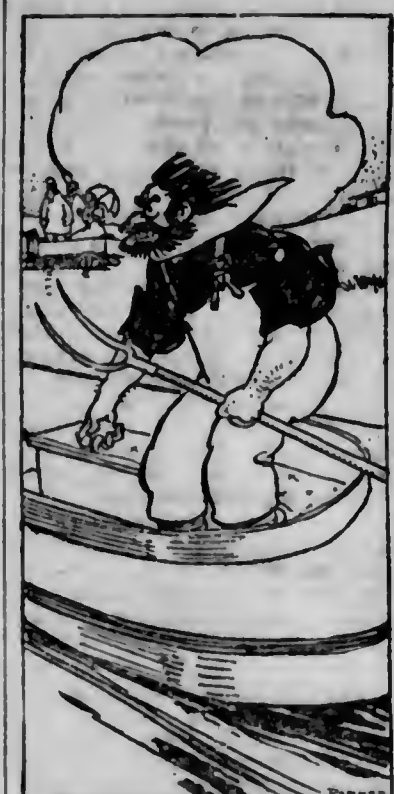

When we rounded the sand hill we see the race, in the distance. Lonesome had gained a pint or two, and Todd wa'n't more 'n four pitchforks in the lead.

"Make for the launch!" I whooped between my hands.

The parson heard me and come about and broke for the shore. The Greased Lightning had swung out about the length of her anchor rope, and the water wa'n't deep. Todd aplashed in to his waist and climbed aboard. He cut the rolling just as Lonesome reached tide mark. James, he sees it's a close call, and he slips back to the engine, reaching it exactly at the time when the seat with the pitchfork laid hands on the rail. Then the parson throws over the switch—I'd shown him how—and gives the starting wheel a full turn.

Well, you know the Greased Lightning? She jumped like the cat that lit on the hot stove. Lonesome, being balanced with his knees on the rail, pitched head first into the cockpit. Todd, jumping out of his way, falls overboard backward. Next thing anybody knew the launch was scooting for blue water like a streak of what she was named for, and the hunting chaplain was churning up foam like a uill wheel.

I yelled more orders than second mate on a coaster. Todd bubbled and beltered. Lonesome hung on to the rail of the cockpit and let his hair stood up to grow. Nobody was cool but Clarissa, and she was an iceberg. She had her good p'lits, that old maid did, drat her!

He didn't know how to stop her.

"James," she calls, "get out of that water this minute and come here! This instant, mind!"

James aluded. He paddled ashore and hopped, dripping like a dishcloth, alongside the truck wagon.

"Get in!" orders Skipper Clarissa. He done it. "Now," says the lady, "passing the reins over to me, 'drive us home, Mr. Wingate, before that intoxicated lunatic can catch us.'"

It seemed about the only thing to do. I knew 'twas no use explaining to Lonesome for an hour or more yet, even if you can talk finger signs, which part of my college training has been neglected. 'Twas murder he wanted at the present time. When I slapped the mare with the end of the reins she took the bit in her teeth and commenced to gallop. I hollered "Whoa!" and "Heave to!" and "Be-lay!" and everything else I could think of, but she never took in a reef. We humped over hummocks and ridges, and every time we done it we spilled something out of that wagon. First 'twas a lot of huckleberry palls, then a basket of groceries and such, then a tin pan with some potatoes in it, then a jug done up in a blanket. Out of the tail of my eye I see Lonesome, well out to sea, heading the Greased Lightning for the beach.

When you drive down to Lonesome p'int you have to ford the Cut Through. It's a strip of water between the bay and the ocean, and 'tain't very wide or deep at low tide. But the tide was coming in now, and more'n that, the mare wa'n't headed for the ford. She was cuttin' across lots on her own hook and wouldn't answer the helm.

We struck that Cut Through about a hundred yards east of the ford, and in two shakes we was hub deep in salt water. "Fore the Todds could do any-thing but holler the wagon was afloat and the mare was all but awimming. But she kept right on. Bless her, you couldn't stop her!

We crossed the first channel and come out on a flat where 'twasn't more'n two foot deep then. I commenced to feel better. There was another channel ahead of us, but I figured we'd navigate that same as we had the first one. And then the most outrageous thing happened.

If you'll believe it, that pesky mare balked and wouldn't stir another step. "Drive on!" says Clarissa, pretty average vinegary. "Havent' you made trouble enough for us already, you dreadful ninn? Drive on!"

Hadn't I made trouble enough? What do you think of that?

"You want to drown us?" says Miss Todd, continuing her chatty remarks. "I see it all! It's a plot between you and that murderer. I give you warning. If we reach the hotel my brother and I will commence suit for damages."

My temper's fairly long suffering, but 'twas ravelling some by this time. I'd about got to thirdly when James gave a screech and p'inted. And if there wa'n't Lonesome in the launch headed right for us and coming a-b'livin', he'd run her along abreast of the beach and turned in at the upper end of the Cut Through.

You never in your life heard such a row as there was in that wagon, Clarissa and me yelling to Lonesome to keep off, forgetting that he was stone deaf and dumb, and James vowing that he was going to be slaughtered in cold blood. And the Greased Lightning p'inted just so she'd split that cart andships and coming—well, you know how she can go.

She never budged until she was within ten foot of the flat, and then she sheered off and went past in a wide curve, with Lonesome steering with one hand and shaking his pitchfork at Todd with 't'other. And such faces as he made up! They'd have got him hung in any court in the world.

He run up the Cut Through a little ways and then come about, and back he comes again, never slackening speed a mite and running close to the shoal as he could shove and all the time going through the bloodiest kind of paste-mimes. And past he goes to wheel round and commence all over again.

Thinka I: "Why don't he ease up and lay us aboard? He's got all the weapons there is. Is he scared?"

And then it come to me—the reason why. He didn't know how to stop her. He could steer first rate, being used to sailboats, but an electric auto launch was a new idea for him, and he didn't understand her works. And he didn't run her aground at the speed she was making. 'Twasn't he'd finished her, and more 's likely, him too.

I don't s'pose there ever was another mess just like it afore or aence. Here was us, stranded with a horse we couldn't make go, being chased by a feller who was run away with in a boat he couldn't stop.

Just as I'd about give up hope I heard somebody calling from the beach behind us. I turned, and there was Becky Huckleberries, Lonesome's daughter. She had the dead decoys by the legs in one hand.

"Hil!" says she.

"Hil!" says I. "How do you get this glimpse of yours under way?"

She held up the decoys.

"Who kill-a dem ducks?" says she.

I pluted to the reverend. "He did," says I. And then I caltate I must have had one of them things they call an inspiration. "And he's willing to pay for 'em, I says."

"Pay thirty-five dolla?" says she.

"You bet!" says I.

But I'd forgot Clarissa. She rose up in that waterlogged cart like a statue of Liberty. "Never!" says she. "We will never submit to such extortion. We'll drown first."

Becky heard her. She didn't look disapp'inted nor nothing. Just turned and began to walk up the beach. "All right," says he. "Go 'ly."

The Todds stood it for a jiffy. Then James give in. "I'll pay it!" he hollers. "I'll pay it!"

Even then Becky didn't smile. She just come about again and walked back to the shore. Then she took up that tin pan and one of the potatoes we'd jinnied out of the cart.

"Hil, Rosa!" she hollers. That mare turned her head and looked. And for the first time since she hove anchor out that flat the critter unfurled her ears and hissed 'em to the masthead.

"Hil, Rosa!" says Becky again and began to pound the pan with the potato. And I give you my word that that mare started up, turned the wagon around alee as could be and began to swim ashore. When we got where the critter's legs touched bottom Becky remarks "Whoa!"

"Here!" I yells. "What did you do that for?"

"Pay thirty-five dolla now," says she. She was tussness, that girl.

Todd got his wallet from under his armpits and counted out the thirty-five, keeping one eye on Lonesome, who was swooping up and down in the launch, looking as if he wanted to cut in, but didn't. I tied the bills to my jackknife to give 'em weight and tossed the whole thing ashore. Becky, she counted the cash and atowed it away in her apron pocket.

"All right," says she. "Hil, Rosa!" The potato and pan performance began again, and Rosa picked up her hoofs and dragged us to dry land, and it sartainly felt good to the feet.

"Say," I says, "Becky, it's none of my affairs as I know of, but is that the way you usually start that horse of yours?"

She said it was, and Rosa ate the potato.

Becky asked me how to stop the launch, and I told her. She made a lot of finger signs to Lonesome, and inside of five minutes the Greased Lightning was anchored in front of us. Old Man Huckleberries was still hankering to interview Todd with the pitchfork, but Becky acted that all right. She jumped the coast and atowed it away in her apron pocket.

"All right," says she. "Hil, Rosa!" The potato and pan performance began again, and Rosa picked up her hoofs and dragged us to dry land, and it sartainly felt good to the feet.

"Say," I says, "Becky, it's none of my affairs as I know of, but is that the way you usually start that horse of yours?"

She said it was, and Rosa ate the potato.

Becky asked me how to stop the launch, and I told her. She made a lot of finger signs to Lonesome, and inside of five minutes the Greased Lightning was anchored in front of us. Old Man Huckleberries was still hankering to interview Todd with the pitchfork, but Becky acted that all right. She jumped the coast and atowed it away in her apron pocket.

"All right," says she. "Hil, Rosa!" The potato and pan performance began again, and Rosa picked up her hoofs and dragged us to dry land, and it sartainly felt good to the feet.

"Say," I says, "Becky, it's none of my affairs as I know of, but is that the way you usually start that horse of yours?"

She said it was, and Rosa ate the potato.

COUNCIL BOARD SLIGHTLY MIXED

CHANGE IN MANNER OF DOING BUSINESS CONFUSES.

Aldermen Take Things Easy Waiting for Lower Board to Do Something.

SEVERAL NEW ORDINANCES.

Confusion was the predominating feature of the board of councilmen's meeting last night at the city hall. It all came about over the novelty of both boards meeting on the same night and at the same time. This was inaugurated for the first time in the history of the city and while the council was making blunder after blunder in dispatching the routine of business the aldermen were across in their chamber, perfectly calm and more or less at leisure, waiting for some measure to be brought to them from the lower board.

Robert Hill, clerk of the aldermen, was sworn in last night and his hand accepted. The general council need not fear for a messenger as three were busy last night. They were Chief of Police Henry Singery, City Jailer James Clark and License Inspector Robert Hicks.

In the council when the ordinance was presented, providing for the increase of the monthly salaries of police and firemen, Councilmen Duval and Lally disagreed with the rest of the board. When the ordinance was originally asked for, it provided that police and firemen should receive a $10 per month raise, but the ordinance last night provided only for $5 advance. The change had been made by the city solicitor without the knowledge of the council or ordinance committee and for this reason Councilmen Lally and Duval fell out. The change, however, was made, owing to the insufficient apportionment for those departments and instead of killing the ordinance right there, the council decided a $5 raise was better than nothing and would suffice this year if there were not enough funds for the $10 raise. Another $5 per month raise will probably be made next year.

Another question that provoked argument in the lower board was the request of Fire Chief James Wood, who asked permission to have an old telephone installed in his office at the new fire station at his own expense. He told the boards it was necessary, but four of the councilmen were opposed to it, owing to the suit now pending in federal court between the city and East Tennessee Telephone company. They claimed it was simply a way of making the boycott ineffectual. The aldermen unanimously agreed to permit the telephone to be installed.

Board of Councilmen.
Present were: Foreman, Bowers, Ruddle, Duval, Horton, Wilson, Mayer, McCarthy, Kreutzer, Leigh, Hannan and Lally.

On motion of Councilman Leigh the council reconsidered exempting the Well Distilling company from taxation. The company was granted exemption for a period of five years.

To the finance committee was referred the claim of the Paducah Coopers company for $560.55, claimed to be erroneously assessed. The board of supervisors had recommended the refund.

The council concurred in the action of the aldermen in referring a bill of James Segenfelder to the finance committee for investigation. Segenfelder's bill was for drugs purchased by the city in 1908.

A motion was carried to charge the trip of City Solicitor Campbell and Alderman Lackey to Frankfort, Ky., to the contingent fund, changing it from the fund of costs and suits, to which it had been charged.

The board concurred in the action of the aldermen in accepting the devise of William Bornemann, amounting to $2,500; indemnifying the board of directors of Riverside hospital against any future suit or damage claim; and appropriating $125 per annum for the maintenance of a charity ward at the hospital for a period of 50 years.

A contract between the city and the Paducah Light & Power company to furnish electric motive power for the city hall elevator for a period of one year was ratified. The cost for power will be a minimum price of $16.50 per month, or 8 cents per kilowatt hour. The finance committee met previous to the council and authorized the mayor to enter into the contract. The blank contract was read before the board.

To the public improvement committee with power to act was referred the matter of letting the contract for the construction of three new cells in the city jail and also 15 beds for prisoners. Two bids that were received by the finance committee and read were: National Sheet Metal Works, $294; Jackson Foundry and Machine company, $330.

The following accounts on the auditor's claim register for half a month's salary were allowed:

Street department, $270.50; sewer department, $95.50; fire department, $92; police department, $270.50; police patrol, $60; jailer and deputy, $100; cow police, $37.50; light plant, $132.50; Riverside hospital, $123.20; Oak Grove cemetery, $34.50; sanitary inspectors, $32.50; market master, $37.50; total $2,989.80.

Ordinances.

First and second passages were given an ordinance, amending an ordinance, providing that the city clerk shall receive $200 per year extra for the employment of an assistant to make a record of the proceedings of the board of aldermen.

An ordinance, increasing the salaries of policemen and firemen $5 more per month, was passed. All patrolmen will receive $65 the month; the captains and day captain of the police department, $80 per month and night captain of the police department, $75 the month.

An ordinance, authorizing the mayor to appoint an elevator operator at a salary not exceeding $46 the month, was given first and second readings.

An ordinance, amending an ordinance increasing the monthly salary of the lamp trimmer at the city electric lighting plant from $50 to $60 the month, was given first and second readings.

Burning Bonds.
Eight street improvement bonds, one hospital bond, four Mayfield gravel road bonds, all for $1,000, that had been retired, were sent to the board of aldermen to be burned.

The council referred to the hospital, sewer and sanitary committee the matter of employing an architect to draw plans and specifications for a contagious ward at Riverside hospital.

F. S. Jordan was granted a deed to a lot in Oak Grove cemetery on payment for same to the city treasurer.

The board ratified a contract between the city and the Hensley Marble & Granite company, of Paducah, for 103 headstones for graves in Oak Grove cemetery at a cost of 62½ cents each or a total cost of $26.71.

On a vote of 8 yeas and 4 nays the board granted Fire Chief James J. Wood permission to have an East Tennessee Telephone installed at his office at the new central station on Kentucky avenue. Chief Wood will bear the expense himself and the phone will be for his private use only, and not for turning in fire alarms. Members opposing the move were: Councilmen Foreman, Duval, Hannan and Horton.

Miscellaneous.
The board concurred in the action of the aldermen in referring to the board of supervisors a request from David M. Flournoy for the refund of $5.54, alleged erroneously assessed on a horse and carriage, belonging to his mother, as she lives outside the city limits and was a non-resident of Paducah.

Councilman Charles Horton turned over to the general fund a check for $3 that had been made out to him by mistake for attending a meeting in December, 1909. The money rightfully belongs to former councilman Al E. Young, and was made out to Mr. Horton through an error.

Until the next meeting, was deferred the matter of appointing a special committee to employ an architect to draw plans for a contagious ward at Riverside hospital.

President Foreman instructed the public improvement committee to have the bell at the corner of the city hall moved. The police will hereafter press an electric button to make a signal with the bell in the tower.

The street committee was instructed to see property owners along Husbands street from Fourth to Sixth streets with a view of getting dedications for the opening of this street.

Councilman Leigh's motion to have the ordinance committee bring in an ordinance, exempting new industries from taxation for five years and refunding their taxes at the end of that period, was turned down as it would be illegal. This matter was thrashed out last year in the general council.

City Treasurer George Walters was authorized to establish Wednesday after meetings of the general council as pay day for city employees.

To the street committee and Sewer Inspector Franke was referred the matter of placing a drinking fountain at the corner of Tenth and Trimble streets and also the matter of building a watering trough for stock on the city scales lot at a cost not to exceed $50. Mr. Franke will install the drinking fountain at Tenth and Trimble streets free of cost to the city.

Fountains were ordered placed last year, but were not and two of them are now broken at the rear of the city stables back of the city hall. One is in good condition.

City Clerk Maurice McIntyre was instructed to get four copies of Roberts' rules of order for use in the council and aldermen chambers.

The public improvement committee was instructed to arrange for sufficient lights in the council chamber. The present lights are poor and last night the clerk and reporters groined in the darkness.

The board adjourned.

Board of Aldermen.
On motion of Alderman Lackey the aldermen reconsidered their previous action and charged the trips of the city solicitor and himself back to the costs and suits fund from the contingent fund. The reason for this was that the former fund is more ample to care for the expenditure.

To the finance committee was referred the claim of the Paducah Coopers company amounting to $560.55.

The contract between the city and the Paducah Light & Power company to furnish the city hall elevator with electric motive power for the ensuing year, was ratified on recommendation of the finance committee.

Accounts for one-half month were unanimously allowed.

Bids for the construction of three cells and fifteen single beds in the city jail were referred to the public improvement committee with power to act.
